VINCENNES UNIVERSITY

HORTICULTURE AND LANDSCAPE DESIGN

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

Vincennes University's Horticulture and landscaping program offers students a comprehensive education in the art and science of plant cultivation and landscape design. With hands-on learning opportunities in greenhouses and labs, students gain practical experience that prepares them for a variety of careers in the horticulture industry. The program's curriculum covers a wide range of topics, including plant identification, soil science, pest management, and sustainable landscaping practices. Additionally, students benefit from small class sizes and personalized instruction from experienced faculty members who are passionate about nurturing the next generation of horticulture professionals. Whether aspiring to manage a nursery, design beautiful gardens, or contribute to environmental conservation efforts, students in this program are well-equipped to succeed in their chosen field.

OCCUPATIONS UPON COMPLETION OF PROGRAM:

Graduates of the program can pursue careers in various fields such as landscape design, greenhouse management, plant propagation, and more.
